

CITY'S DAILY MENU
FROM WHOLE EARTH

560 Carloads of Food Consumed Every 24 Hours in Port District.

APPETITES ARE SIMILAR

Plans to Care for 8,000,000 in Case of Tieup Shown in Authority Report.

We who dwell within the port of New York district consume annually $465,300,000 pounds of foodstuffs. We get it from every State in the Union and almost every section of the earth. For instance we get fish from Norway, eggs from Australia, tomatoes from the Bahamas Islands and onions from the banks of the Nile.

All this and all its correlated features, such as how it gets here, where it is stored and how distributed, is set forth in the latest report of the port of New York authority issued yesterday and based on information gathered since October, 1921, when a national railroad strike threatened to cut off the food supply of the city of New York and the 104 other municipalities, large and small, included in the port district.

In discussing the food requirements for the port district population, the report says:

"The last census gives the total population of the port district as 8,000,000 inhabitants. (New York city comprises nearly three-quarters of this total.) Obviously this figure is not a satisfactory index of unit food consumption, however, for it includes infants under one year and grandfathers over 75.

Among these inhabitants may be found people of all nationalities and occupations. A person, then, means little as an index of food habits and needs, nor is there any certainty that 8,000,000 persons balance individual variation and establish an average type.

Appetites More Similar.

"If we may believe the United States Department of Agriculture, sectional and racial differences in diet are fast disappearing. At all events we may agree that the reign of the chain store and the quick lunch tends to foster a homogeneous appetite.

"The first problem was to get the age distribution of the population in the port district, which was obtained from the last census, and then to multiply this age distribution by the scales that make the necessary adjustments for sex and age. When this was done it was found that there are approximately 78 equivalent adult males to every hundred population. Multiplying the 8,000,000 population of the port district by 78 per cent. gives 6,240,000 equivalent adult males.

"The Port of New York district receives annually for local consumption about 539,000 carloads of foodstuffs. This means a daily receipt of 590 carloads by rail, water and truck.

"To show the gigantic nature of the problem of supplying the port district with its food, it may be mentioned that 97,562,440 quarts of milk are annually received, an average of 2,670,835 quarts daily.

Important Live Stock Center.

"Contrary to general knowledge, the Port of New York district, considering the total number of head slaughtered, is one of the most important live stock centers of the nation.

"The amount of meat held in storage in the port district is very small in comparison with the daily consumption. There are only eight seasonal fluctuations of amount, the smaller the smaller holdings being from September to February and the larger holdings generally in July and that of minimum holdings November. During the winter there was only from six to eight days' supply in storage.

"Only a small part of the gross receipts of wheat, rye, barley and flour are consumed locally, owing to large exportations from this port. The approximate consumption in 1920 was: Wheat and flour (in pounds of flour), 1,411,200,000 pounds; rye, 153,325,464 pounds; barley, 41,490,422 pounds. To produce this amount of wheat, rye and barley, 2,140,143 acres of grain fields were required, taking 1920 average production per acre as a basis.

"In discussing transportation of foodstuffs, the report dwells on the means of transportation and how long the 8,000,000 of people could exist should transportation facilities be suspended. It says:

"The first and most difficult problem would be to keep up the minimum necessary daily supply of fluid milk. This would seem impossible of attempting by maintenance of the regular milk trains, because of the comparatively great distance of milk producing areas and the impracticability of attempting either motor truck or water transportation for it on a large scale.

"Staple vegetables such as potatoes, onions, cabbage and carrots would be supplied to the port district by motor truck from nearby sections from southern or foreign points at practically all times of the year. A cessation of railroad transportation would immediately cut off the bulk of the supply of live stock and live poultry. Such commodities as sugar, coffee and tea, which reach here almost entirely by water, would not be affected by stoppage of rail transportation, although other sections dependent on this distributing market might suffer.

Heavy Storage of Staples.

"With regard to flour, grains, canned goods, eggs, butter, cheese, evaporated and condensed milk, frozen meats and frozen poultry, the quantities on hand in storage during the major part of the year would be a great protection against any temporary emergency. A supply of fresh fish could be had by water transportation from all points on the Atlantic Coast. This would be possible at all times of the year except during a very severe winter season.

"Within the last three years there has been a great growth in the use of the motor truck for hauling fruits, vegetables and other farm products to the New York market. One outstanding fact in the consideration of other means of transportation of foods other than rail is the comparatively slight use that has been made of the barge canal for bringing New York State products to market. The location of this canal passing through the center of the State's richest producing areas would seem to offer far greater possibilities than have yet begun to be realized."

5,446 FAMILIES GET A. I. C. P. HELP IN YEAR

Big Share of Outgo for Tubercular Cases.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor spent $288,980 in the various departments last year. It was shown yesterday in the seventy-eighth annual report. The self-supporting activities disbursed $104,462. During the year 5,446 families were assisted with money, food, clothing and rent.

The total income for the term was $272,987, about $25,000 less than disbursements. Bailey B. Burritt, general director, says in the report: "About one-third of the funds which the A. I. C. P. expended for relief during the past fiscal year went for the relief of families in which there was tuberculosis, and more than one-half was expended for families in which there had occurred the death of the breadwinner. It is significant that studies which the A. I. C. P. has made indicate that in approximately 10 per cent. of all the families in need because of the death of the breadwinner, the breadwinner died from tuberculosis. If we add other ills to tuberculosis we find that the bulk of all relief goes to families in which there is present either illness or death from preventable illness."

THREE WOMEN TO JAIL FOR ONE STORE THEFT

All Married and Took Bag Valued at $24.50.

Three married women were sentenced yesterday in Special Sessions to thirty days each in the workhouse for shoplifting. They were found guilty of acting together in the theft of a beaded bag valued at $24.50 from a Broadway department store. They were Anita Teselone, 25, 333 East Fifty-fourth street, mother of two children; Daisy Motto, 27, 1825 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn, also mother of several children, and Violet urtz, 21, 20 Avenue A. All were second offenders, the police testified.

Another woman, Mrs. Bertha Wipert, 42, 174 St. Nicholas avenue, became hysterical and screamed "Oh, my children!" when sentenced to the workhouse for three months. She had pleaded guilty to stealing articles valued at $17.50 from a store in Fifty-ninth street. Lena Schmidt, 47, nurse, 310 West Eighty-sixth street, received thirty days for stealing merchandise worth $46 from a Broadway store. Three women were given suspended sentences as first offenders.

JEWISH FUND VICTORY SEEN IN FINAL DRIVE

Quest for $5,000,000 Here Ends To-morrow.

The New York committee for the Jewish War Sufferers hope to close its quest for its quota of the $4,000,000 asked of the country with such a rush to-day and to-morrow that all doubt of its being able to raise the desired $5,000,000 will have vanished before the final campaign rally in the Hotel Commodore to-morrow night. The drive comes to an end to-morrow night.

One hundred volunteer teams have been whipping New York city into giving and have had to work hard. The feature of yesterday's contributions was a check for $4,494.23 for municipal employees, taken to headquarters by Abraham Kaplan, head of the Civil Service Commission.

MASONRY TO HOLD FAIR.

In the interests of the new Masonic memorial hospital in Utica the 570,000 members of the Masons and their affiliated organization in New York State are combined in the promotion of an exposition to be held in Madison Square Garden from May 8 to May 13, inclusive. The money raised is to be devoted to maintaining the new hospital. Innumerable interests from fashions to amusement enterprises, will be featured.

"The first and most difficult problem would be to keep up the minimum necessary daily supply of fluid milk. This would seem impossible of attempting by maintenance of the regular milk trains, because of the comparatively great distance of milk producing areas and the impracticability of attempting either motor truck or water transportation for it on a large scale.
